

I am very grateful for the relief from obnoxious soliciations provided by Indiana's telephone privacy law. It is incovceivable to me that this law would be weakened so that citizens of Indiana could once again be bothered by unwanted calls during dinner, bedtime for children, or while relaxing in the evening or on weekends. I hope that the FCC will do the right thing and help us preserve the peace and quiet that we have sought and obtained.